THE MOUNTAIN MEADOW MASSACRE.

The Salt Lake Mining Journal suggests that a monument be erected to mark the spot where occurred one of the bloodiest and most fiendish events in American history. We allude to the Mountain Meadow massacre. The Journal says: The remains of the unfortunate victims lie there, and no column is raised to point out the spot of the fiendish outrage, and no tablet is inscribed with the date of their unfortunate fate. The massacre has already been perpetrated and can not be blotted out, yet it does not follow that we who are innocent of the crime should heap insult upon injury by treating the remains with silent contempt. And the Elko Independent adds "that such a deed should not be allowed to sink into oblivion, but should be kept vividly before the eyes of the people until the perpetrators receive full justice and answer for their misdeeds according to that favorite Mormon law—the law of Moses—which demands an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth."

GREEN VEILS.—We frequently see little children in their carriages upon the street with green veils tied over their heads and faces. A child will always take the folds of the veil in its mouth, when it can, and will often extract the green coloring matter with its lips. Children, and even grown people, have sore mouths and faces from this cause, which are frequently difficult to heal. The coloring matter in the green veil contains arsenic, which, when placed in contact with a delicate surface like the lips, or a pimple upon the face, will cause an ulcer that is troublesome to heal. Ladies sometimes have sore hands from wearing green gloves, when they innocently attribute the difficulty to another cause, thinking that their hands are chapped. Green colored wearing apparel of any character should never be worn next to the skin.

On the possibility of the horse disease reaching Nevada, the Carson Register has this to say:

We have carefully watched, from time to time the movements of the disease, from the locality to another, and now, there is reason to fear that the disease is liable to exist in our midst at any moment, if it does not already exist in Ormsby county; we hope not. Night before last, Charley Bray lost one of his dray horses, and a day or two since one died in Douglas county, and another in the same locality was not expected to recover. It would not be amiss, at any rate, for those owning horses to pay some attention to the best mode of treatment for the disease that exists among horses to such an alarming extent throughout the United States.

A year or two after the war, a distinguished American editor was in Paris, and was looking one day, with a fellow American, at the pictures in the Louvre, and talking of their country. "The fact is," said the editor, "that what we need in America is a damned good licking." A foreigner, who stood by and heard the remark, smiled eagerly as if he knew a nation that would like to administer the chastisement. "Yes, sir," said he, complacently rubbing his hands with appetite and joining in the conversation, "that is just what you want." "But the difficulty is," continued the editor to his friend, "if he had heard nothing, that there is no nation in the world that can lick us, so we turned to and licked ourselves; and we shall behave a great deal better for it hereafter."

A Santa Fe letter of November 13 has the following:

C. R. Stanton, of California, arrived in this city yesterday, from the New Mexico and Arizona diamond fields, with a very fine collection of stones. Among them is one stone pronounced by those who profess to be judges, and which has stood all the tests brought to bear upon it, a ruby weighing sixteen carats. Parties here from New York familiar with cutting, state that the stone will not lose five carats in cutting. Its value by these parties is to-day placed at $250,000. Mr. Stanton has, he thinks, many stones of immense value, and some diamonds. This intelligence has created more excitement here than anything heretofore from the diamond fields. The ruby referred to is very brilliant even in its rough state.

The young ladies of the period must be given to dreamy speculations, they build such castles in the (h)air.
